Traditional data centers typically offer floor space, power, and network connectivity as a part of their co-location services. Additional support activities are often charged after-the-fact, and can add significant cost to your co-location hosting contract.

At SecureData 365, we believe that co-location should include key foundational services that are critical to the successful operation of your company's computing environment. We offer much more than just space - our world-class data center is backed by our professional staff and ITIL V3.0 processes. As part of our commitment to you and your operations, SecureData 365's co-location service includes:

- Rack space
- Power – metered, charged as used
- Network – available in 1Mbps increments
- Advanced perimeter network security, IDS, IPS, complete traffic analysis
- Asset management – inventory, reporting
- Basic operational services
- Essential monitoring and reporting services
- Power, network, and system status
- Available remote hands support

Featuring our state-of-the-art technology, power and connectivity, biometric enrollment, redundant power, network access, SecureData 365's co-location cabinets provide a fully-integrated solution that is also highly cost-effective.
